CAVENDISH HOUSE

Cavendish House is a striking and sympathetic extension to a single storey home in the Conservation Area around Henley-on-Thames, Oxfordshire. The family wanted to bring natural light into the property but needed to comply with strict planning regulations.

The Rooflight Co's Conservation Rooflights provided thermally efficient toplighting with the authentic features of the Victorian roof windows that were in keeping with the property. Internally, the light and view is maximised through the frameless design.

Using 16 Conservation Rooflights, light now flows through the new extension creating a bright and airy space that's also warm and inviting. In the bathroom, as the rooflights face upwards, privacy blinds were not required, providing the client with clear night sky views as they soak in their large bathtub.

COTSWOLDS

“I looked at other options on the market, but the simple design of the Conservation Rooflight made them the perfect choice. Clean lines, great quality and a perfect fit with the aesthetics of our home”.
